MONDAY, JANUARY 30

GENERAL BANKS AND THE PRESIDENT.

It is certainly very true that the administration is moving in many mysterious ways its wonders to perform. Here is an illustration of that remark: "The proposed gathering at Washington the 2d of February ensuing of those members of congress who thirty-two years ago elected N. P. Banks, of Massachusetts, speaker of the house, has suggested an unpleasant incident in the treatment of the veteran by the president, and his name is also brought conspicuously before the public by the recent presentation of his portrait, as well as those of the two other speakers Massachusetts has furnished to the government."

The Boston Advertiser is responsible for the statement that on that day a member of the Massachusetts governor's council called upon the president and ventured to make the suggestion that it would be greatly appreciated by the state if he would allow General Banks to retain the office of United States marshal which he now holds. To this the president rudely replied that if General Banks wanted an office the state should provide one for him, and intimated further that he was keeping him in the marshalship against his will and only as a matter of charity! To this the Advertiser answers, evidently by authority:

It is well to bear in mind that no man in this state is more entitled to a Federal office than he; that if he is turned out it will be simply in order to "find a place" for somebody else not possessing one tithe the claim which he does for consideration. We would wish, for the sake of dignity of the federal administration in this state, that it might see its way clear to retain in office a man like General Banks, whose record and career give a dignity to the place which he holds which can never be attained to by any of the men who have been mentioned as his successor. But there is no one who wishes to have him kept there on any such account as that sugested by the president. The president need not hesitate on that score for one moment to give the position to any one whom he desires.

It would be nothing less than a disgrace to the administration to remove General Banks from office. He is probably not entitled to any more consideration than any other worthy republican, but Mr. Cleveland professes to run his administration on business principles, and on the theory that public office is a public trust. General Banks is a man entitled to some consideration inasmuch as his term of office has not yet expired. He was the first republican speaker of the house of representatives having been elected on the 2nd of February, 1856, after a contest of two months' duration. He was a major general during the war and did the best he could for the Union.

In all these years he has worked for others and not for himself. He never prostituted a public office. He never speculated in politics. He never used any position he ever held to help himself, and to-day, he is as poor as when he quit congress years ago. He is a man without a blemish either in his private life or public record, and if Mr. Cleveland sincerely regards a public office as a public trust, he will retain General Banks in the marshalship. When a man reaches the age of 72 years, whose life has been one of the severest struggle, whose unflinching integrity is known of all men, and whose ability is too conspicuous to be questioned, he should be permitted to hold an office for which he is eminently qualified.

Let us see what Mr. Cleveland will do with General Banks.

The country is flooded with almanacs, some of them good, only too many of them of trifling importance. The almanac of the New York Tribune for 1888, which has just made its appearance takes its place, as usual, among the very few thoroughly good and reliable publications of this class. This is the fiftieth Almanac published by the Tribune, and is appropriately called the Semi-Centennial Issue. The price is 25 cents. The Tribune never carries its agressively republican politics into its Almanac. The book is a non-partisan publication, reciting impartially and accurately the statistics and election returns of the country, summarizing fairly all the important enactments of congress and the platform of the political parties in the several states, and providing a larger quantity of popular information of general interest. The sole aim of The Tribune Almanac is to be useful and accurate; and its honesty in this respect has made it the standard book of reference for political statistics which no competition has ever shaken. The present issue is prepared for use in the presidential year and gives the popular vote for president back to 1828. A great variety of election returns, lists of officials, pensions and trade statistics, and other useful matter, is crammed into the Almanac; and the astronomical tide, and planetary data are unusually full.

A retired army surgeon in London poisoned his wife. Two weeks later he married his mistress; three days later still he was arrested on an indictment. In ten days more he was convicted and within two weeks afterward he was hanged. Only six weeks elapsed between the commission and the discovery of his crime, and only four weeks between its discovery and its expiation on the gallows. If it had been in the United States, the case would have run in about this fashion: The authorities decide to arrest the murderer. In about one year he has his trial. The plea of insanity is made. The trial drags along and the fellow is found guilty, for a wonder, of manslaughter. A motion for new trial is made. In the course of several months the motion is argued, and a new trial granted. Some time the year following a new trial is held, and the jury disagree. In the course of time, the case is tried again, and the murderer gets a few years in prison. This is not an extravagant illustration of the difference between murder trials in the United States and England.

It is claimed that a new meeting of the New York democratic state committee will be called, to take the vote over again on the question of filling the vacancy from that state on the democratic national committee caused by the death of the late Hubert O. Thompson. Those who forecast the result of the next meeting say that the vote, instead of being a tie, will stand 26 for Cleveland to 8 for Hill. They also declare that the result will be accomplished by "a free use of federal patronage," and, strange to say, this allegation comes from mugwump sources, without a word of dissent. Nothing of that kind will make a mugwump dissent. The entire "independent" press of New York, which claims to be wiser and better than party, will not find fault with the use of federal patronage in the effort of the administration to control things in New York. This illustrates how tightly Cleveland has the mugwumps by the ears.

Senator Ingalls is eminently sound on the prohibition question. In referring to the bills to provide for prohibition in the District, which are soon to come up before the District committee, of which he is chairman, says: "I will put these people to the test. There is great need of a shaking up among those gentlemen who preach prohibition all day and champagne all night. I pledge you my word that those people will either have to fish or cut bait. I am going to prove their sincerity. As a matter of fact, I don't see anything wrong with prohibition. It works very well in Kansas. The prohibition people have the prohibition law—that's what they wanted—and the whisky drinkers have all the whisky they want. There seems to be no reason for complaint there. Both sides ought to be perfectly satisfied."

A straw, and a very important one, for temperance people to consider: In the New York legislature a bill passed the assembly prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors at county fairs, which was passed by a vote of eighty to twenty-nine. Every one of the votes cast against the bill, except one, was cast by a democrat. This one exception was Mr. Reitz, of Brooklyn. The hostility of the democratic party to all temperance legislation was never better illustrated, because the measure was chiefly drawn up to prevent drunkenness at fairs, where it is especially offensive and morally demoralizing, owing to the presence of such a large number of women and children. It is probably for doing such splendid temperance work as this that the St. John wing of the prohibitionists wants to kill the republican party.

Harper's Weekly is still very hopeful. It thinks the democratic party is too cowardly to walk on the platform laid down by the president. It says, "The majority does not mean that its party shall enter upon the presidential campaign as a 'free trade' party, and there is no way in which the party can be forced to take that position. It seems now to be pretty clear that the president, not a policy, will be the democratic platform." The Harper's is mistaken. It will be a "policy" campaign mixed with a good deal of cowardice. The platform will be neither free trade nor protection. It will be a sort of a face-both-ways platform. The democrats dare not adopt any other kind.

Mr. Robert Graham, of New York City has with great care ascertained the following facts: "Preceding the presidential election of 1884, there were held in New York City 1,002 political conventions—congressional, assembly, aldermanic, primary, etc.—283 of which were held apart from saloons, ninety-six next door to saloons, and 633 in saloons." Yes, and every one of the 633 conventions held in saloons were democratic. This shows where the heart and affection of the democratic party are.

Congressman Allen, of the Jackson (Miss.) district, says that colored citizens were not prevented from voting in that city at the recent election, and that all could vote who wanted, if they would vote the democratic ticket. He added that the only purpose of the whites in arming was to make them do so. Of course, there is a perfectly honest colored vote in the south, and a fair count every time provided the colored vote is democratic.

Our statesmen are adopting the plan of airing their wisdom in the magazines as well as in congress. Senator George F. Edmunds has an able article on the "Protective Tariff" in Harpers Magazine; Senator Shelby M. Cullom has an equally able article in the February Forum on "The Government and Telegraph," and Hon. William D. Kelley, of Pennsylvania, tells "How Protection Protects" in the same magazine.

Miss Minnie Freeman, the heroic school-teacher, of Myra Valley, Nebraska, who saved thirteen school children by her presence of mind in the recent "blizzard," has already been overwhelmed with offers of marriage. But Miss Freeman still retains her presence of mind, and can't be seduced by flattering offers of marriage. She proposes to keep out of a worse blizzard than can be made by snow and wind.

The Albany Argus rather broadly insinuates that Samuel J. Randall's career in the democratic party has been that of a tolerated traitor and a Benedict Arnold. This is the opinion of a majority of the democratic papers in the country, outside of Pennsylvania. When a democratic statesman doesn't bow his neck to the free trade yoke, they call him a traitor.

A Two Million Dollar Fire on Broadway New York this Morning

The Faulty Air Brakes Cause a Serious Railroad Accident at Muncie

One Man Killed and Thirty Seriously Injured in the Wreck.

TWO MILLIONS LOST.

Special to the Gazette.

NEW YORK, Jan. 30—One of the largest fires witnessed in this city during the past fifteen years, broke out in the store of Henry Rigess & Co., 549 Broadway, at an early hour this morning, and despite the efforts of the fire department, four immense business houses were destroyed, and many others seriously damaged. During the fire, a terrific explosion occurred, sending a shower of bricks and iron skyward, the mass of debris falling into the streets. Assistant Fire Marshal Reilly was fatally hurt, and a number of firemen were more or less injured, many making miraculous escapes. The store was occupied by firms dealing in laces, fancy goods, clothing, etc. The loss will reach two million dollars. The fire is now under subjection.

FAULTY AIR BRAKES.

Special to the Gazette.

MUNCIE, Ind., Jan 30.—The air brakes on a passenger train of the Bee Line train, reaching this city this morning refused to work and the engine dashed into a freight train standing on the track Both engines were wrecked and several cars caught fire and burned. Thirty persons were reported hurt—one fatally.

WILL RESIGN.

Special to the Gazette.

NEW YORK, Jan., 30th.—Cornelius Bliss proposes to resign the chairmanship of the republican state central committee, as he intends to spend the coming season in Europe. It is thought that General Knapp will be elected his successor.

POTATOES FROM EUROPE.

The Failure of Last Year's Crop Causes the Importation of the Toothsome Vegetable.

CHICAGO, Jan. 30.—Since the great crop failure of 1881 potatoes have not been scarcer or dearer over the country than they now are. The crop last year in Michigan, Southern Wisconsin and New York—the three greatest potato-producing States—was a total failure. The Illinois and Indiana crop was far below the average, and Missouri, Ohio and Iowa did not fare much better. During the early fall and winter the scarcity was not felt so badly, but since the railroads have been blocked by storms in the Northwest the scarcity has grown daily and prices have gone up. Since about January 1 foreign consignments of potatoes direct from Scotland, Germany and Denmark have been made to this city. Other great distributing points—St. Louis and Kansas City—have been in a measure supplied with the Utah and Colorado potatoes, but the supply has now given out and calls are being made upon this city which it will be difficult to fill, until, at least, the weather moderates.

The largest consignment made direct from Europe to any firm in this city was that which arrived Thursday to Messrs. Krull & Volger. The consignment was made from Rotterdam, and consisted of three car-loads of 2,500 sacks, between 7,000 and 8,000 bushels. In conversation Mr. Krull said the potatoes he had received were intended for local consumption alone, Chicago and suburbs consume from 8,000 to 9,000 bushels daily. St. Louis and Kansas City had called on him for some but none would be shipped. The potatoes imported are the best varieties grown in the old country—the Magnum Bonum, Champions and Regents. They are shipped from Glasgow, Hamburg and Rotterdam. The champions are the Scotch potatoes; the Regents come from Germany. They cost in Europe about ten to fifteen cents a bushel. The duty is fifteen cents a bushel, and in the Chicago market they now bring ninety cents a bushel. He did not think the price would go much higher, neither did he believe a potato corner could be successfully carried now, for the simple reason that our facilities for getting the product from other countries are better than they were then. The potatoes left Rotterdam December 21 and reached here January 25. Another consignment is expected in a few days by the same line.

A. E. Evans, a commission-man from Kansas City, who is in the city, said that the scarcity of potatoes in the Southwest was greater now than had been for five years. Missouri no longer supplied the market, and Colorado and Utah had nearly ceased shipping. He was here in the interest of his house trying to secure a consignment from the local commission houses. One or two commission houses have sent a few car-loads to St. Louis, but none of the imported potatoes are going there.

CARS SCARCE IN IOWA.

The Iowa Railway Commissioners Read the Riot Act to the Northwestern Road.

DES MOINES, Ia., Jan. 30.—In forwarding Representative Fillmore's complaint about the scarcity of cars at Peterson, Clay County, to Marvin Hughitt, president of the Northwestern road, the Railway Commissioners quote Fillmore as follows: "He reports that every available place in the town is filled with grain, even to new wagon boxes, which the dealers have for sale, are filled; that for the past two months farmers have been compelled to haul their grain back home because the buyers have no place to store it; that because of this inability to sell the products of the farm, because the railroads do not furnish cars to take it away, they are unable to pay their debts and are being sued; that the merchants in the town have been carrying these farmers until they are on the verge of bankruptcy; that these elevator men and grain buyers have exhausted their credit with their commission men in Chicago and elsewhere; that this state of affairs has become well nigh unbearable, and that the people are becoming so exasperated that threats are made against the property of the railroad company and serious fears are entertained that there may be an outbreak of the public peace." The Commissioners read the riot act to the railroad, insisting that it has given no satisfactory excuse for the failure to furnish cars.

IN CONGRESS.

Probable Course of Legislation During the Week.

WORK FOR MEMBERS OF BOTH HOUSES.

Commissioner Colman's Views on the Suppression of Pleuro-Pneumonia Explained—State Co-Operation Favored—Other News.

THE CONGRESSIONAL PROGRAMME.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—The Educational bill remains, as for three weeks past, the unfinished business of the Senate for to-day, and Senator Morgan has the floor for a speech upon it. It is likely to give place for the House bill making appropriations for agricultural experiment stations. Should the Educational bill be brought to a vote before the end of the week it will probably be succeeded by the undervaluation or the Dependent Pension bill. Senators Konna and Platt are understood to contemplate the delivery of speeches on the tariff and surplus during the week.

The Urgent Deficiency Appropriation bill will be reported to the House at the beginning of the week, and its consideration will consume a day or two. Mr. Wilkins' National Bank bill stands first in the order of unfinished business, but unless its author recovers from his illness in time to give it attention it will give place to the resolution assigning an unlimited period of time for the consideration of a large number of bills for the erection of public buildings. This proposition will be vigorously opposed by a small minority, and if not disposed of by Thursday will be sent back to the calendar, as the Elections Committee intends to call up the Lowry vs. White Indiana election case on Thursday, which will possibly consume the remainder of the week. The Pension Appropriation bill, which is a privileged matter, may be called up for action during the week, and the Committee on Foreign Affairs will make an effort to pass the French Exposition bill if opportunity offers.

COLMAN ON PLEURO-PNEUMONIA.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—Commissioner Colman has written a letter to Senator Palmer, chairman of the Senate Agricultural Committee, regarding the suppression of pleuro-pneumonia. The Commissioner expresses the belief that the plan of State co-operation is preferable to the one which relies solely upon National authority, and says that the work of extirpating pleuro-pneumonia, which is now being done by the bureau of animal industry, is going on smoothly, harmoniously and effectively by means of State co-operation. He thinks that this work should be continued upon the same lines where it is now moving, and that it will be unfortunate and ill-advised if any new and untried plan be adopted.

THE LIQUOR TRAFFIC.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—The House Committee on the Alcoholic-Liquor Traffic has instructed its chairman—Campbell (O.)—to call the Speaker's attention to the fact that bills relating to the liquor business have been referred to committees on the Judiciary, the Ways and Means and the District of Columbia, instead of to the Committee on the Alcoholic-Liquor Traffic, which committee, it is contended, properly has jurisdiction of all bills affecting the liquor question. On February 9 the committee will give a hearing to a delegation from the National Temperance Alliance on the bill to create a commission to inquire into the liquor traffic.

GUILTY OF FRAUD.

Coy and Bernhamer Convicted of the Indianapolis Tally-Sheet Forgeries.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 30.—The jury in the trial of the election-workers returned a verdict Saturday night finding Simon Coy and W. F. A. Bernhamer guilty as charged, and declaring Stephen J. Mahlor not guilty.

The attorneys for the defense announce that they would attack the verdict on the ground that the jury had been communicated with, but upon what grounds the charge is based is not known. The court at once discharged Mahler and allowed Coy and Bernhamer to go on their present bonds of $2,000 until the preliminary motions to sentence were disposed of. Thursday next was set for argument for a new trial. The defense will ask for a supersedas from Judge Graham, and will carry to him the question of jurisdiction. All of the other motions are overruled by Judge Woods.

SIM COY.

Twenty-Eight Drowned.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—The second officer of the bark Lizzie Perry, which was wrecked about three weeks ago off the coast of Barbadoes, arrived here Friday and told the story of the loss of the vessel and twenty-eight of the thirty people on board. When the vessel went down, a number of the crew were in boats, but several went delirious, and jumped overboard. After being thirty-one days at sea the remaining two men were rescued.

Dixey Defeated.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 30.—The case of Dr. Morrison Munford, editor of the Times, who is charged by Henry E. Dixey, the actor, with criminal libel in publishing a sermon of Sam Small's in which Dixey was characterized as a blackleg and gambler, was dismissed Saturday evening on account of several flaws and omissions in the indictment. Dixey's lawyers say that they will prepare a new information.

Fell Dead Before the Pope.

LONDON, Jan. 30.—An unpleasant incident which has greatly affected the Pope occurred at the Vatican the other day. As the Grand Master of the Household of Prince Colonna, Enrico Donati, was advancing to the throne of his Holiness to present a magnificent diamond jubilee-gift of his master, he suddenly fell forward on his face, and when raised was found to be dead.

A BLIZZARD

As one business man said to another, "This sale of Bostwick & Sons is a REGULAR DAKOTA BLIZZARD,--that is, they have swept all competition out of sight. The prices they are making on ALL goods SURPRISE the people; and as they say, they are selling Dry Goods CHEAPER than ever before known at any sale. Besides this, they have got the goods to SELL, and they are not afraid to SELL them REGARDLESS of quantity."

Why, just imagine 300 rolls of Carpet, the finest in the land, at PRIME COST; 500 packages of all manner of Dry Goods at cost. Some Special things: 10 pieces of Cloaking, made by the McLean Manufacturing Co., at 75c. a yard, 54 inches wide---the best value of any one thing in the sale; and everything on the same order; 150 dozen Hoods and Nubias the same; 1,000 dozen Hosiery the same. Right here we will speak of a little lot of Gents' Scarlet UNDERWEAR that we are selling at 87 1-2c; this lot of goods was bought by our auction man from a bankruput sale; the same goods have been sold at $1.75. This is no "competitors' talk," but fact. Also 500 Ladies' and Children's Underwear that are cheap indeed. Prints, Ginghams, Satines and all kinds of wash goods on the same low scale during this sale. Well may our competitors stand Awe Stricken at this grand panorama of goods offered at such LOW figures; and when the people come to buy they will find the goods and not be greeted with "just out." 'Sample Corsets,' being handled by everybody, are apt to breed disease; they are the kind we throw away.

WIPED OUT BY FIRE.

Destruction of the Peoria (Ill.) Chamber of Commerce.

A LOSS OF $135,000 INVOLVED.

Rokker's Big Printing Establishment at Springfield, Ill., Burned—Heroic Scenes at a Fire in a New York Hospital—Other Fires.

PEORIA'S PRIDE BURNED.

PEORIA, Ill., Jan. 30.—The Peoria Chamber of Commerce burned last night. The fire was discovered about 7 o'clock. The flames were soon beyond control. Had there been a wind it would have swept the entire block north of the building. When the roof fell in seven or eight firemen were carried down to the third floor, and two of them, James Smith and John Becker, were very badly crushed and burned. It is thought the fire originated by the explosion of the furnace boiler, and the flames communicated to the roof through the elevator shaft. The building, a handsome one, is a total loss. It was erected in 1875 at a cost of $95,000, and the property of those occupying it will make the loss fully $50,000 more. On the lower floors were the offices of the Western Union and the Mutual Telegraph companies, the offices of all the fast freight lines and several grain and commission merchants, the Peoria Improvement Association and others.

A PRINTING-HOUSE BURNED.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Jan. 30.—The large printing, binding and stereotyping establishment of H. W. Rokker, famous for the prominent part he played in the State printing combine scandal, was entirely destroyed by fire Saturday morning about 6 o'clock, entailing a loss of $110,000. Among the property burned were the plates of N. L. Freeman's "Illinois Supreme Court Reports," with about 200 copies of each volume from volume 47 to volume 120; between 80 and 100 books from the State Library, which were being rebound; the original copy, plates and printed books, not bound, "Birds of Illinois," by Prof. Forbes, of the University of Illinois, the plates of Davidson and Stuve's "History of Illinois," the plates of "Illinois Regiments in the Rebellion," a portion of the Adjutant-General's reports, the plates of Powers' "History of the Lincoln Monument," the plates and 500 bound copies of Kilner's "Druggist Formulary," three carloads of paper, the plates of the "History of the Blackhawk War," by P. A. Armstrong; the plates and 1,000 bound volumes of "Siege of Vicksburg," the plates of David Lusk's "History of Illinois Politicians," and 1,000 bound volumes, fifty-seven volumes belonging to James C. Conkling's private library; the plates for Nonces' "Pilgrims Progress;" the plates for Pillsbury & Freeman's "School Laws" and a large amount of job work for the State and private parties.

FIRE IN A HOSPITAL.

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—The coolness of the attendants alone prevented great loss of life at the Hospital for the Ruptured and Crippled, which took place last evening. The building is at Lexington avenue and Forty-second street, and in it 163 crippled children are cared for. Last evening, when most of the children were in bed, Louisa Fehlig, aged 12, and Mary Greely, aged 10, started up-stairs to go to bed. On reaching the second floor they were suddenly enveloped in clouds of smoke. Both children are suffering from spinal disease and can walk only with difficulty. Without screaming or manifesting fright in any way they hurried as rapidly as possible to the third floor and found a nurse, Ellen Dougherty, and told her the building was on fire. The nurse told them not to tell any of the children and sent them to their rooms. She then sent word by an assistant to Matron Webber, who in turn notified Dr. Gibney, through whom an alarm was sent out. As rapidly as possible the doctor, nurses, police and firemen, as well as a number of citizens, carried the children from the burning building. The guests in the Vanderbilt Hotel opposite gave up their rooms, and 143 of the little sufferers were put to bed there. The others found shelter in private houses in the vicinity. The fire was soon put out, the loss being $2,500. When the fire had been extinguished the lifeless body of Mary Donnelly, a cook in the hospital, 45 years old, was found in her room on the fifth floor, where she had died from suffocation. Ten-year-old Max Schwartz, who is suffering from hip disease, tried to carry out John A. Burke, a little deaf and dumb cripple, but the boy was too heavy. He then dragged him out to the hallway, where he met a policeman, who carried both boys down.

December 18, 1884, the entire west wing of the home, which is under the control of the Roman Catholic Orphan Asylum of Brooklyn, was destroyed by fire, one of the sisters, thirteen boys and two female servants perished. The money damage then was $100,000.

A $300,000 BLAZE IN PITTSBURGH.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Jan. 30.—A defective flue in the four-story building of C. G. Hussey, 42 Fifth avenue, occupied by Urling & Sons, merchant tailors, and Heeron Bros., manufacturing jewelers, caused a fire yesterday morning which burned fiercely for eight hours and occasioned a loss of $300,000. The adjoining building, occupied by William Haslage & Co., wholesale grocers and fancy-goods dealers, was also burned and several neighboring buildings were deluged with water. This makes the seventh disastrous fire that has occurred in the center of the city during the last nine months, the aggregate loss of which will reach several millions.

FATAL FIRE AT MALONE, N. Y.

MALONE, N. Y., Jan. 30.—The Empire block, one of the finest in the city, including a hotel, opera-house and seven fine stores, was burned yesterday. The loss will reach $200,000; insurance, $75,000. The Howard House, Frank Tallman, proprietor, the Farmers' National Bank and several large firms were burned out. While the Howard House was burning there was explosion, due it is supposed to gas in the cellar, by which Isaac Chesley, a prominent merchant and one of the proprietors of Ralph's, a noted Adirondack hotel, was killed.

ROCK ISLAND, Ill., Jan. 30.—The Johnson flour-mills, at Milan, were destroyed by fire yesterday morning. The mills, which had been in operation for almost forty years, were supposed to have been fired by an incendiary. Loss, $40,000; no insurance.

SLOWLY STARVING TO DEATH.

A Young Man Who Has Swallowed No Food for Two Months.

READING, Pa., Jan. 30.—About two months ago Jacob Hollenberger, a young man 19 years of age, while working in a stove foundry in Philadelphia was injured by an explosion of molten iron. The explosion killed one man, and a quantity of the molten fluid flew in young Hollenberger's mouth and slipped down his throat, closing up the passage leading to his stomach. Since then it has been impossible to give him any nourishment except by injecting it in liquid form. When in good health the young man weighs 140 pounds, but his weight has now been reduced to sixty-five pounds. When he rouses from the influence of the opiates which are given him he constantly appeals piteously for food. It is believed that starvation will finish its work in a few days. Every effort to remove the obstruction which shuts out food for his stomach has proved futile.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Jan. 30.—Under the operations of the new law the number of saloons in this city bids fair to be greatly reduced. It is believed that not more than 250 licenses will be taken out.

Startling Discovery.

The discovery by the inhabitants of a locality hitherto unvisited by the pestilent scourge of fever and ague, that it exists in their very midst, is decidedly startling. Such discoveries are made at every season, in every part of the Union. Subsequently, when it is ascertained, as it invariably is at such times, through the valuable experience of some one who has been benefitted and cured, that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is an efficacious eradicator of the malarial poison, and a means of fortifying the system against it, a feeling of more security and tranquility reign throughout the whole neighborhood. Besides the febrile forms of malarial diseases, dumb ague and ague cake are removed by the potent action of the Bitters, to which science gives its sanctions a remedy for rheumatism, dyspepsia, constipation, liver complaint, debility, kidney troubles, and all diseases impairing the organs of digestion and assimilation.

MANY TRAINS STALLED.

The Snow Blockade in the East the Worst Ever Known.

TRAFFIC PRACTICALLY SUSPENDED.

Drifts in Some Places Thirty Feet Deep—Little Progress Possible in the Work of Digging Out the Buried Trains.

HARD WEATHER IN THE EAST.

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—Advices from the upper part of the State show that traffic is still held fast in the grip of Jack Frost. Hundreds of freight-cars are laid up at East Syracuse, and live stock is being unloaded to save it from starvation and freezing. Fourteen trains are stalled west of Skaneateles. At Ridgebury the funeral of Margaret Decker, which was set for Thursday, is still postponed for want of a coffin. The undertaker lives six miles away and can not get there. On the Pine Island branch of the Erie three powerful engines are still stalled, and farmers are carting fuel and water for the purpose of maintaining the fires and steam.

The hotels at Auburn and Canajoharie are crowded with snow-bound guests, and there is but little prospect of their being able to continue their journey for some days. Eleven passenger trains are stuck in drifts within fifty miles of Auburn. The snow in the cuts near Cato is over thirty feet deep. There is a cattle-train on the Central road at East Palmyra snow-bound, and cattle and hogs are reported freezing to death. There is also one at Green's crossing said to be in the same way. Long Island City is threatened by a water famine if the cold weather continues. The snow blockade on the railroads in this State has already so reduced the milk supply in this city as to cause considerable inconvenience, and unless the embargo is soon raised a real milk famine will result.

BOSTON, Jan. 30.—Dispatches from numerous points in New England do not indicate any substantial improvement in the state of affairs resulting from the blockade. The weather remains cold, high winds continue to prevail, and the snow is still drifting to such an extent that the efforts of the large gang of shovelers and the most powerful snow-plows, driven by many locomotives, are practically useless. Here and there a blockaded train is dug out and goes on its way, while others which have been moving are brought to a standstill. At Newport, R. I., the temperature has been below zero for four days, and the wharves and harbor are full of ice, rendering navigation difficult and hazardous. Farmington, Me., surrounded by snow-drifts fifteen feet deep, has been cut off from the rest of the world for three days. Miles of freight-cars are side-tracked between Pittsfield, Mass., and Albany with much perishable property on board. Over 100 belated passengers are detained at Pittsfield. Many of them are without money and are obliged to sleep in the railroad station. Fears are entertained that the coal supply of towns off the lines of railroad will be exhausted before the roads can be opened.

A CRISIS AT HAND.

An Attempt to Start Reading Collieries—Trouble Feared—An Effort to Bring the Lackawanna Miners Into the General Strike.

SCRANTON, Pa., Jan. 30.—An important meeting of District Assembly No. 16, which comprises all the local assemblies of the Knights of Labor in the Lackawanna and Wyoming coal-fields, will be held to-day at Pittston, when, it is thought, a strong effort will be made by representatives of the Schuylkill miners to make the coal strike general throughout Pennsylvania. It is expected that General Master Workman Powderly will be present, if possible, although it is doubtful whether his weak physical condition is yet equal to the excitement of such a gathering. There are 25,000 miners within the area of District Assembly No. 16, and these are mining all the anthracite sent to market at present. If they can be induced to join the men who are now on strike the work of mining anthracite coal will be brought to a complete standstill. The men of the Lackawanna and Wyoming Valleys do not favor a strike, but a strong pressure will be brought to bear on to-day's meeting for the purpose of inducing them to change their opinions.

READING, Pa., Jan. 30.—The miners held meetings in many places yesterday, and everywhere they apparently showed a solid front. The report from the strikers' headquarters is that there have been no defections from the ranks, and that the railroad company or individual owners of mines will find it a difficult matter to start up any colliery full-handed.

It is asserted here that the Reading Company will make another attempt to start up at least five of its collieries this morning with non-union hands. Special officers have been detailed to protect all persons desiring to go to work. Matters are beginning to look serious. The striking miners are becoming ugly and may resort to violence if non-union men are brought in.

Teacher and Pupils Died Together.

MANDAN, D. T., Jan. 30.—The remains of Schoolteacher George Patrick have been sent to Peosta, near Dubuque, Ia., where his mother and sister live. Patrick and five pupils were caught in a school-house out on the prairie when the last blizzard raged. It was death to leave the frail building, and for three days and nights they suffered from cold and hunger. The brave man broke up the desks and floors for fuel, but when a rescuing party reached the school-house they found that teacher and pupils had died together.

Canadian Knights Seceding.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 30.—The decline in the Knights of Labor as to numbers goes steadily on here. All the assemblies show decreases, some to very large extent. One assembly had 600 members a year ago, and now has only sixty. Five months ago there were in this city fully 4,000 Knights of Labor. It is doubted if there are 1,000 now. Internal dissensions and dissatisfaction with management of the order are alleged as the causes of this remarkable decrease.

Servitude for Life.

CITY OF MEXICO, Jan. 30.—Three Americans, Charles Small, Hutchinson, and Doc Hines, tried and convicted of train robbery in Mexico, have been sentenced by the Criminal Court at Chihuahua to imprisonment and hard labor for life. If they had not been Americans they would have been hanged.

Burned in Their Home.

TAWAS CITY, Mich., Jan. 30.—The dwelling of Dennis Clifford, five miles from here, was burned Friday night, and Clifford and his wife, who were an aged couple, perished in the flames.

Died at a Ripe Old Age.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., Jan. 30.—Mrs. Bridget Nihill, of Hudson, in this county, died Friday night. She has just passed her 100th birthday, and has long been a resident of the county.

Worth Knowing.

Mr W. H. Morgan, merchant, Lake City, Fla, was taken with a severe cold, attended with a distressing Cough and running into Consumption in its first stages. He tried many so-called popular cough remedies and steadily grew worse. Was reduced in flesh, had difficulty in breathing and was unable to sleep. Finally tried Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption and found immediate relief, and after using about a half dozen bottles found himself well and has had no return of the disease. No other remedy can show so grand a record of cures as Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. Guaranteed to do just what is claimed for it. Trial bottle free at F. Sherer & Co's. drug store.

I have not used all of one bottle yet I suffered from catarrh for twelve years, experiencing the nauseating dropping in the throat peculiar to that disease, and nose bleed almost daily. I tried various remedies without benefit until last April, when I saw Ely's Cream Balm advertised in the Boston Budget. IOWA LEGISLATIVE DOINGS.

Provisions of Hutchinson's Registration Act—Bills Introduced in the House.

DES MOINES, Ia., Jan. 30.—The Hutchinson Registration bill absorbed attention in the Senate Saturday. The Republicans caucused on the measure Friday night and agreed to present a solid front and generally followed the caucus dictum. In the case of McCoy's amendment to exempt cities of 3,400 population or less from the operations of the bill, a number of Republicans voted with the Democrats, but lacked three of enough to carry the amendment. The bill, as ordered engrossed, provides for general registration every four years and for corrections at each election. Voters who can show that they have ever been registered will be allowed to swear in their vote on election day. The bill greatly reduces the expenses of registration, and is much more preferable than the present law.

In the House Mr. Dobson introduced a bill giving women the right to vote at municipal elections. This will be pretty well supported by the temperance people. Mr. Craig presented a bill strengthening the present law punishing fraud, intimidation and bribery at elections, the bill being minute as to particular offense and penalty. Solicitation of any thing of value from candidates is also punishable. Any person in authority at a primary election, caucus or convention, who practices deceit, or does a wrongful act in connection with his duty as chairman, judge or teller, is to be fined $500 or imprisoned two years. Incorporated or individual employers of labor, or their foremen, attempting to influence employes regarding the manner of casting their vote may be fined $1,000 to $5,000.

CORA LEE SET FREE.

Acquitted of the Charge of Complicity in the Murder of Sarah Graham—History of the Crime.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Jan. 30.—The trial of Cora Lee for the murder in the first degree of Sarah Graham terminated Saturday afternoon about 5:15 o'clock in a verdict of acquittal. The jury deliberated only about seven minutes. Tears of joy rolled down the cheeks of both Cora Lee and Mrs. Malloy as they received the congratulations of their friends. The verdict was not unexpected, owing to the mystery surrounding the murder and the contradictory and unsatisfactory evidence.

[The murder for which Cora Lee was tried was a most atrocious one. George Graham, his wife, Sarah, Mrs. Emma Molloy and Cora Lee all hailed from Indiana. Mrs. Molloy, who was a woman of means engaged in evangelical work, befriended Graham. Cora Lee was a protege of hers, and the quartette moved to Elgin, Ill., where their conduct occasioned much scandal. Mrs. Graham became jealous of the two women, and domestic broils were frequent. Graham sent his wife home to Indiana and accompanied Cora Lee and Mrs. Molloy to Springfield, Mo. He represented that he had secured a divorce from his wife and married Cora Lee. Mrs. Graham heard of this, and determined to go to Springfield and expose him. Graham met her in St. Louis, and used every effort to induce her to return home. She refused, and leaving her two children at the Springfield depot, started with Graham for the Molloy farm. She was never seen alive again. The wife's disappearance caused a search, and her body was found in a well on the Molloy farm. She had been killed with a hatchet. Graham was arrested and lynched.]

A RAILROAD WRECK.

One Man Killed and Several Others Injured by a Freight Train Breaking Through a Bridge.

CHICAGO, Jan. 30.—Freight train No. 47, of the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern railway, bound for Chicago, broke through a bridge at Pine station, about twenty miles out, at 2 o'clock this morning, and a brakeman named Coulter, of Fort Wayne, was killed instantly. There were ten cars, one of which was loaded with naptha and the others with coal, which, together with the cars, caught fire and burned rapidly. The flames spread to the trestlework of the bridge, and a dispatch was sent to Chicago for a wrecking-train and a fire-engine. The engineer, fireman and one or two other train hands were reported seriously injured, but no definite information could be obtained.

IN SOMNO VERITAS.

I dreamed I sat in my chamber
And watched the dancing light
Of the blaze upon my hearth-stone,
And the red brands glowing bright.

I listened to the rustle
Of the flames that rose and fell,
And I dreamed I heard a whisper,
A voice I knew full well.

The room no more was lonely,
A presence sweet was there—
A girlish figure, standing
Beside my own arm-chair.

I dreamed I spoke, and, trembling,
Lest she should prove to be
The creature of a vision,
I bade her sit by me.

Her grave, brown eyes she lifted,
Her dear hand placed in mine;
The air was sweet with incense
Of odorous birch and pine.

And as we watched together
These eager, dancing flames,
We talked of days forgotten,
Called each our childish names

I dreamed that Heaven seemed nearer,
The skies a lovelier blue;
Then—was it still a vision?—
I dreamed my dream came true!

A BIG HORN HERMIT.

General Brisbin Discovers Him Living with a Pet Bear.

While hunting not long ago up in the very heart of the Big Horn Mountains we came to a little open valley through which ran a stream of pure cold water. Follow the stream up to its source, writes General James P. Brisbin from Fort McKinney, Wy. T., to the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, we found a magnificent spring. The pool was six feet wide, seven or eight feet deep and so clear that every pebble on the bottom could be distinctly seen. Near the spring stood an old double cabin of rough hewn logs, which we at first thought was uninhabited. On closer inspection, however, we found that some body lived in it. We rapped on the door, but got no response, and we were about to turn away when a pet bear shambled up the path towards us and an old man clad almost entirely in skins of wild animals followed close behind the bear.

"Come here. Jacko," said the man, "and don't be too free with the strangers. He won't hurt you, gentlemen," continued the old man, "but he is mighty free." The bear sat up and looked and then came up and smelled us. "Get out of the way, Jacko," said the old frontiersman, giving the brute a smart kick, "and mind your manners. Come in, gentlemen, and don't mind Jacko; he is my only companion and he and I live here all alone. I expect I spoil him sometimes, but Jacko is a mighty smart bear and can do almost every thing but talk. I got him when he was only a little cub up there on the mountain, and he is now over a year old. Go and lie down, Jacko," and the bear did as he was bid.

We were now in the cabin, and a strange place it was. An old fire-place, with a few pans and kettles, a rough table made of hewn logs and set up on stakes and three-legged stools completed the furniture. The earthen floors were covered with bear, wolf, fox and swift skins, and Jacko rested on the pelt of a magnificent grizzly, perhaps the hide of his own father. The walls were ornamented with skins hung up on pegs, and a dozen or more heads of elk, deer, bear, antelope, wolves and lions beautifully preserved looked down at us. The poise and expression of the heads were so life-like they seemed as if about to spring from the walls. One huge wolf, a Rocky mountain lion and a swift had been stuffed entire, and they looked as if alive. I expressed astonishment at the beautiful art of the taxidermist and the skill with which the work was done, and the old man seemed pleased.

"I did it all," he said. "The winter nights are long, and when I work it keeps me from getting lonesome."

Hearing me addressed by my companion by my military title, the old man looked hard at me and then asked, quickly:

"Are you a soldier! In what army did you serve during the war?"

I gave him my name and told him I had served in the Army of the Potomac for nearly three years.

"My God!" he exclaimed. "I was there too, and I remember you perfectly well now. Well, well," he continued, "it seems a long time ago since the war, and I presume most of my old comrades are dead." He then told me the number of his regiment and company and the names of his officers. He had gone into service from Philadelphia, and had been all through the war. Before the war he was a furrier on Arch street, Philadelphia.

"What are you doing out here all alone in this God-forsaken place?" I asked.

"Not God-forsaken," he replied, "for here, General, amid these mountains we are almost face to face with God."

"But what are you doing here living like a hermit?" I persisted. "Come, old comrade," I added, kindly, "you may trust me and give me your story."

And he did tell it. It was one of the saddest tales I ever heard, and I should like to repeat it entire only I don't think he would like me to do so. Suffice it to say he had a family—a young wife and two children—when he went into the army and left them behind in the great city. For a year or two all went well, and then he heard strange tales of his wife. He did not believe them and served out his enlistment and returned home, only to find the stories he had heard were too true, and his wife was married to another man. He took his children from her, cursed her and left. His children he left with his brother in Iowa and then came to the Rocky Mountains. He had been for over twenty years in the valley where I found him, and said he never would leave it. I asked him if he did not want to see his children, and he said they were both married to good men, and would not want to see such an uncouth old creature as himself even if he did want to see them. He had given all his money and property to his brother for them and that ended it. He knew they were all right and was glad of it. He preferred to be alone for he had nothing now to live for.

He cooked us some supper, and it was plain enough, but good. An ash cake, some fried deer meat and baked potatoes was all he had to offer, but it tasted good, and we washed our food down with a draught of sweet water from the beautiful spring.

After supper he took us into the adjoining cabin, and there I saw a sight I shall not soon forget. The walls were completely covered with heads beautifully done and wonderfully life-like. There were elk and deer with great antlers, wolves, foxes, swifts, antelopes, bears and Rocky Mountain lions. I expressed my astonishment at the perfection of his work, and he said: "Time and care does it. The winter evenings are long, and I spend much time at my work." I asked him where he got his skins, and he said he shot the animals. Formerly he killed a great many for sport, but now he killed only a few for food and occasionally one for its pelt. I asked him how he tanned them, and he said an old Mexican named Pete, who lived over the mountain in another valley, tanned them for him.

Yes, once in awhile he sold some heads to get flour, ammunition and tobacco, and once in awhile hunters stumbled on his place and carried away some of the heads. An English Lord—Captain Grissell, or something of the kind—had come last year and taken away most of his best heads and carried them to England.

Wouldn't we stay all night? It was late in the day and the paths in the mountains were uncertain. He could give us a fur bed and a pretty good breakfast of fat venison. If we would stay he would make Jacko dance for us.

It needed not much urging, for the clouds looked heavy in the west and evidently a storm was coming up. It was nearly dark, too, and thanking the old hermit for his hospitality, we gladly accepted the friendly shelter of his roof for the night. Then he brought in some pine logs, made up a good fire, fried some more potatoes and deer meat and baked some batter in a pan. After eating all we could hold he called up Jacko and made him dance, turn somersaults, tumble, open and shut the door, go for water, bring in wood and perform a number of tricks. Jacko was given his supper of cooked meat and put to bed in a corner.

"You don't know what a comfort Jacko is to me," said the old man. "He's just like a human being, only he is a deal better than some I have known. Jacko is honest, and we often talk together—that is, I talk to him, and sometimes I think he understands me."

The old man had some tobacco and corn-cob pipes, and he offered us each one. "I smoke a good deal," he said, "and find my pipe company. There is lots of company in a pipe when I'm lonesome. Jacko smokes, or he thinks he does." He then called up Jacko, made him sit up, put a pipe in his mouth and placed his hat on the bear's head. The bear made a funny picture. "Come and give me a hug and go to bed, Jacko," said the old man, and the bear came and gave him a hug and then went to his corner.

We sat quite late into the night talking of the war. The old man loved to talk about the battles he had been in. I had noticed he was slightly lame, and he showed me where he had been shot in the leg at Antietam. I told him he was entitled to a pension, and should get it for his children, if not for himself. He shook his head sadly, and said: "I have all I need. I have done with the world. Jacko and I will stay here and not bother about any thing."

I was a little afraid of that bear, but the old man assured me he would not move out of his corner until morning, and he did not.

Next morning, after a hearty breakfast, we left him at the door of his lonely cabin, and Jacko turned several somersaults of delight, as if he was glad we were going, and no doubt he was.

How Men Die

If we know all the methods of approach adopted by an enemy we are the better enabled to ward off the danger and postpone the moment when surrender becomes inevitable. In many instances the inherent strength of the body suffices to enable it to oppose the tendency toward death. Many, however, have lost these forces to such an extent that there is little or no help. In other cases a little aid to the weakened lungs will make all the difference between sudden death and many years of useful life. Upon the first symptoms of a cough, cold or any trouble of the throat or lungs, give the old and well-known remedy—Boschee's German Syrup, a careful trial. It will prove what thousands say of it to be, the "benefactor of any home."

Cheering for Patriots.

DUBLIN, Jan. 30.—Rev. Father McFadden and Mr. Alexander Blane, member of Parliament, who were arrested for alleged violations of the Crimes act, were removed from the jail at Londonderry at 5 o'clock yesterday morning and taken to Dunfanaghy, County Donegal, where they will be tried. A crowd gathered outside the jail Friday evening and remained all night, cheering continuously. A few stones were thrown at the police as the prisoners departed by persons in the crowd. Fears are entertained that the trouble will increase.

THROWN FROM A TRAIN.

Conductor Frank W. Lewis Instantly Killed at Evansville Yesterday.

Struck by an Overhanging Roof of a Northwestern Coal Shed.

Conductor Frank W. Lewis was instantly killed at Evansville yesterday.

News of sad affair was brought to this city by Hon. Daniel Johnson this morning. It seems that Mr. Lewis was on the top of a car, and was backing his train into the coal shed, when he was struck by the roof of the shed and thrown under the wheels. The accident happened about eight o'clock in the forenoon.

Mr. Lewis, lived at Baraboo, and leaves a wife and two children.

Dr. W. C. Quivey, the Northwestern surgeon at Evansville, took charge of the remains. At the inquest, held by S. W. Smith, the verdict exonerated the company from all blame.

Funeral services will be held in Baraboo, the body being taken there by a committee from the order of Railway Conductors.

—What is undoubtedly one of the best carriage teams in the city, is now owned by N. Fredricks. The horses are sorrels and are matched to a line. One comes from Harvard, while the other was raised in Old Rock.

—Hon. Henry Watterson and Hon. Henry W. Grady will address the Wisconsin press association at Milwaukee this winter. The association's annual meeting will be on February 28th and 29th.

—When the moon rose Saturday night it had a clouded face In fact, it did not shine out in all its glory until about seven o'clock. The eclipse was of especial interest on account of the clearness of the sky.

—Mr. E. B. Chandler, of the Gamewell Fire Alarm Co., arrived in the city last evening, and is now engaged in perfecting and completing the Janesville alarm system, placing the "indicators" and "gongs" in the engine houses and adjusting the alarm boxes.

—Arrangements are being made for a concert at Lappin's hall on Friday evening, February 10th, in which Mrs. Jennie Twichell Kempton, of Chicago, will take a prominent part. Mrs. Kempton has many friends and admirers in the city, who will be pleased to hear her sing.

—Mr. Adolph Wiseman while chopping wood at Happy Hollow this morning struck the axe into his foot, cutting completely through just above the first joint of the great toe. He was brought to this city and the wound, which was an ugly one, was dressed by Drs. Chittenen. This explains the bloody foot prints in front of Prentice & Evenson's.

—On Saturday the directors of the Public Library Association held a meeting, and in view of the large number of books which has been defaced by patrons of the library, voted to impose a fine of twenty-five cents upon the patron defacing a book hereafter. This rule is made imperative on the part of the librarian, and will be strictly enforced, as it ought to be.

—At the regular Tuesday evening supper to be given by the ladies of the Rectory society at the store in Kenilworth block, hot waffles with maple syrup will be served, in connection with baked potatoes, veal loaf, white and graham bread tea and coffee. The hot waffles and maple syrup alone will be worth the small price charged for supper—15 cents. Don't forget the day—Tuesday, January 31st. Supper served from 5 to 7 o'clock.

—The ladies having in charge the musical to be given at Mrs. E. D. Tallman's next Wednesday evening have arranged with the street car line to make frequent trips from six to ten o'clock. The corner of Washington street and Mineral Point avenue, where the cars start is only a block from Mrs. Tallman's residence. The musical will commence promptly at 7:30. The street cars will make special trips from eleven to twelve o'clock.

—A contagious disease is now prevailing among the dry goods men and the indications are that it will culminate in a regular epidemic on Saturday at Archie Reid's. The disease broke out in the corset department and spread very rapidly with fatal results through the hosiery and underwear line and has at last attacked the dress goods department. You can buy dress goods at Archie Reid's next Saturday at prices never before offered. Read the announcement.

THE EVANGELICAL ALLIANCE

Professor Blaisdell Speaks on This Subject to a Large Congregation.

The Congregational church was crowded to the doors last evening. The only seats available were in the gallery and even here they were few. It was a union service and the speaker was Professor J. J. Blaisdell, D. D., of Beloit College. Professor Blaisdell has just returned from the meeting of the Evangelical Alliance at Washington. His discourse was on the subject of the meeting and was of much interest.

A goodly sized audience gathered at Christ church yesterday both morning and evening, and heard two able and eloquent sermons delivered by the eminent rector of St. Pauls church of Beloit, the Rev. Dr. Fayette Royce. Dr. Royce is a gentleman upon whom nature bestowed superior ability, which, with those rich attainments resulting from his life of study and devotion to his work, distinguish him in the ranks of his profession.

Last evening the pulpit of Trinity church was occupied by the Rev. T. O. Hudson, of Mankato, Minn. Mr. Hudson arrived in Janesville on Saturday evening, and is the guest of the family of Mr. E. G. Harlow, of the first ward. The reverend gentleman is a son of our former fellow townsman and ex-mayor, Judge Sanford A. Hudson, of Fargo, Dakota. His sermon, which was an able one was listened to by many of the old residents of the city.

A good black walnut secretary, suitable for family use, at Sanborn's stove and furniture store, 18 and 20 North Main street.

OBITUARY.

MRS. SARAH COLLING.

Died at her home on Milton avenue, at nine o'clock on Saturday evening, Mrs. Sarah Colling, wife of Mr. W. H. Colling, aged 48 years. Mrs. Colling had been a sufferer from a cancer for several years, and in May last year the tumor was removed, which for a time gave hope that she would recover. She soon, however, met with a sever relapse, ending in her death as above. She was a woman of many estimable qualities and enjoyed the acquaintance and respect of a large circle of friends, who will deeply sympathize with the bereaved household.

The funeral will be held at the house on Milton avenue, at two o'clock on to-morrow (Tuesday) afternoon.

A BANGING OF THE BELLS.

Testing the Fire Alarm Boxes and the Bell Striker.

Mr. Chandler is now engaged in completing the fire alarm system in Janesville, and will probably be ready to give it the official test late this evening or to-morrow, in which case there will be considerable racket on the west side engine house bell. Each box will be pulled and the alarm sounded on the bell as well as upon the engine house gongs. Perhaps it will be found necessary to send in an alarm from the same box more than once. At any rate Chief Engineer Blunk desires to caution people not to become alarmed concerning fire during this test If a fire should occur while the system is thus being examined, both engine house bells will be rung in the old way. It is thought the test will be finished by to-morrow evening.

A BENEFIT.

This is the time for stupendous bargains and wonderful sales, and Stearns & Baker, not to be left behind, propose to give their cigar customers a benefit in the form of a splendid music box. To each person buying 25 cents worth of cigars from their case at one time they give a chance on the box. Cash value of the chance to be one-half the profit on cigars. This is not a chromo scheme with one brand of cigars. You have a choice of any of the leading brands in their well assorted stock, and when the chances amount to the wholesale price of the box, the drawing will take place, and the lucky person gets a prize of rare value.

FOR ANOTHER YEAR.

The Rev. Joseph Waite Consents To Extend His Stay at All Souls Church.

He Preaches a Radical Sermon on Funeral Reform—Incineration Versus Burial.

"Health permitting" announced the Rev. Joseph Waite at the close of his sermon yesterday. "I have consented to remain with you until the close of the year. My work at Baraboo I had hoped to give up entirely, but have been unable to and will preach there every other week."

Mr. Waite's sermon for the morning was on "Burial Reform". "I admit" said the speaker that I do not see much prospect of the reform being effected, although it might be easy perhaps to convince you that it was needed. The difficulty is that when death comes into the family all intellectual powers are for the timed submerged. Sitting by the lifeless clay of one whom we passionately loved we can seldom reason."

The first thing to which Mr. Waite objected was the sending for a minister when the family does not feel that religious services are needed. It was done, he said, simply to conform to the custom showed cowardice and inconsistency, and placed the minister in a position similar to that occupied by the badge on the pall-bearer's arm. Another thing criticized was the habiliment of grief that "tyrannous old Dame Custom puts on each relative of the corpse even back as far as cousins." In the first place, the speaker thought, it was often a source of pecuniary embarrassment, and in the second place, to come before a public assemblage covered up with weeds was simply to cry out to the world: "See how I loved my friend!" It is as though a wife should meet her husband in the full glare of publicity and, falling upon his breast, should cover him with loud-lipped kisses. The practice of opening the coffin at the funeral was also strongly deplored.

"Never can my spirit remain calm," said the speaker, "when I see a coffin lid upraised so that the curious throng may gaze and then criticise 'how the corpse looked.' I should like to see a change here and in the manner in which the body is finally disposed of. The present way is wrong for three reasons—economic, sanitary and sentimental. Five hundred thousand of as good acres as ever were are occupied by the dead, and it has come so now that it cost more to die and secure a decent burial than to live. The sanitary objection is greater than the economic. Nothing is more noxious than decomposing flesh. When bodies are put under the earth, indeed, we think that the earth acts as a sponge and keeps the air free and pure. This is perhaps so, but when the sponge is completely saturated then exhalation must ensue; and noxious vapors soon find their way to the air, as well as to the underground springs that supply us with water. Think of drinking the decoction of a dead ancestor!"

Turning to the question of sentimentality, Mr. Waite spoke of the fact that from fifty to seventy-five years were required to resolve a body to earth.

"What can be more repulsive," he exclaimed, "than to imagine the bodies of ourselves or of our loved ones lying in putridity for all those years? What shall we substitute, do you ask? Anything! Give me anything that is speedy and innocuous. One excellent method is, incineration—not combustion, for no flames touch the body in any way, but decomposition by intense heat. The process leaves almost precisely what is found, after seventy-five years, in the bottom of a metallic coffin—a handful of pearl-white ashes. The only question is whether it shall be in seventy-five minutes or seventy-five years; instantaneously or by a process of sickening putrefaction."

STORIES IN PICTURES.

What Frank Beard Says of Them and How He Says it.

It was thoroughly intelligent and appeciative audience that greeted Frank Beard at Lappin's hall Saturday evening. He was happily introduced by Mrs. C. A. Hunt, president of the Chautauqua circle.

"Again we thank you," she said, "for this reassurance of your interest in our work. Your presence here to-night will be an inspiration in all our future undertakings. The Chautauqua Literary and Scientific circle are very happy in introducing to you this evening, one who talks with chalk, and chalks his talk—the Chatauqua artist—Prof. Frank Beard, of New York, who will now entertain you."

Mr. Beard began by explaining that a story is something which relates an incident. It may be by word, by pantomime or by sketch. "Perhaps I can illustrate this best," he broke in suddenly, "by drawing a picture myself." And he did draw a picture—in fact he drew several. In subject they ranged from a full length portrait of Edwin Booth to that of Barnum's clown; from a landscape to a mischievous small boy.

The pictures were completed faster than words could describe. Each seemed better than the one that preceded, but the hit of the evening was "The Lovers Quarrel." In this two young people were shown sitting back to back with noses tilted in air.

"Now, see here," soliloquised Beard, with an expostulating drawl, "that picture will never do in the world. Its too solemn. Why not change it?"

A few strokes of the crayon worked wonders. Smiles began to play over the face of the young lady and her arm stole gently around the young man's waist. The effect on the youth was even more startling, for his smooth countenance blossomed with grins and whiskers, and he wrapped his arms about his fair companion in a way that threatened instant suffocation.

The lecture as a whole was a success. At the close Mr. Beard was warmly greeted by many of those that made his acquaintance at Monona and was obliged to hold an impromptu reception before he was allowed to leave.

THE ALPINE CHOIR.

A Treat that Janesville People may Soon Enjoy.

T. H. Brand, the wellknown musical critic, writes as follows regarding the company that is soon to entertain Janesville people:

"It may be of interest to many of your readers to learn something concerning the organization of the Alpine Choir and Tyrolese Co., booked to appear in Janesville on Wednesday evening, February 8.

The facts are that the common plan of concert programmes has become distasteful to the masses and the simple announcement of a concert, is associated with a great display of silks, satins and costly dresses, chromatic tones, roulades and trills—and a seeming effort to see about how near a discord can be produced and not die on bases.

"The Redpath Bureau, of Boston, who control a great many of the most prominent concert companies of the east, concluded to meet the emergency. They accordingly sent me to Europe with carte blanche to engage at any reasonable rate, a first class novelty, providing, after searching in all quarters between London, England, and Warsaw, Poland, I selected the best musician from five choirs—managed by Herr Andre. After making a tour of the eastern states, they returned to Europe, and such was the demand for their reappearance that they were induced to pay us another visit. The company however, was re-organized for this special tour, two superior voices taking the place of others. They have become familiar with the class of music most popular for American audiences and they never fail to please. They sing in English, German and French, introducing solos, duets, trios and choruses.

Their instrumental music is also arranged with a pleasing variety. The following artists will appear on this occasion:

Miss Lilly Schiller, the world renowned "Swedish Nightingale" soprano vocalist.

Herr Josef Pitzinger, vocalist, zither virtuoso and Alpine violin player. He is acknowledged to be one of the finest performers known on this instrument. Has performed before the emperor of Germany, Austria and Russia, the late king of Bavaria, and nearly all the royal families of Europe.

Herr Georg Phistor, tenor vocalist and yodeller, zitherist, guitarist and gigilira player. Herr Phister possesses a valuable watch presented to him by the Emperor of Russia after a performance before him. He has also performed before the Emperor of Austria, and several of the crowned heads of Europe. Numbers among his pupils the Crown Princess of Germany, who still uses the instrument made for her by Herr Phistor.

Herr Hans Holaus, basso profundo and solo guitarist. Herr Holans possesses a magnificent voice of boundless power and depth.

Fraulein Dagmar Heckeli, contralto soloist and yodeller. Celebrated throughout "The Tryol" for her wonderful "Yodelling."

Fraulein Eugenie Andre, vocalist, zitherist and mandolin soloist.

Miss Emily Major, vocalist and pianist

Those who have heard abroad the Alpine songs, with the yodel and Tyrolese warbling, know what a peculiar charm attaches to this kind of music.

ABOUT THERMOMETERS.

The Exposure of Instruments In Order to Obtain Correct Temperature.

Timely Facts From Sergeant Schley of the Signal Bureau.

A position of a thermometer that its temperature will at all times be that of the air, says Sergeant Schley, of the Signal Bureau, is what is sought for in the thermometer exposure. To obtain a proper record of the temperature thermometers should be exposed to a free circulation of the air, but at the same time they should be protected from the direct as well as the reflected rays of the sun's heat, either from the atmosphere, the earth's surface or surrounding bodies as all those things affect the reading of the instrument. It has been found that where there is little or no circulation, i. e, wind—the air of lowest temperature has a tendency to settle in the lowest places, hence it is important that the thermometer exposure should be made on a slight elevation or the roof of a building. The best exposure is found to be a height above the ground free from the influences of neighboring objects; the next best, a position on the roof of a building uninfluenced by the harmful effects of artificial, radiated or reflected heat.

If the exposure is on the ground, it should not be within 25 feet of any building, nor within 5 feet of the ground; it should also be hung in the shade. The old rule, therefore, of exposure on the north side of a building, facing a lawn with trees and grass, is a good one so far as the latter are concerned, since a grassy surface does not become abnormally heated during the day, as does the bare earth; but it is a very bad one so far as it relates to the wall, especially if this be either brick or stone, for the effect of this wall is to vary the reading, especially in clear weather.

The temperature of the air decreases with an increase of alatitude during the day, but at night it is generally reversed, and the air is colder near the earht's surface, consequently the thermometer must be protected from this. Where the temperature is observed about four or five feet above a grass sod, it is very nearly that of the lower of the atmosphere, owing to evaporation and conduction of heat into the interior of the earth, which tends to keep the surface and lower stratum of air from becoming very much heated, but still, the air at such a place is subject to extremely low nocturnal temperatures.

It must be remembered, also, that temperatures in and over a city are higher than in the country, and are therefore not strictly comparable. Another fact is also to be recollected, namely that mercury freezes at a temperature of 40 degrees below zero and a reading below,—38 degrees is not to be relied on. Where the temperature has been below the freezing point of mercury and is rising, the readings will be very erroneous as long as there is any of the mercury in a solid state, consequently for very low temperatures, a spirit thermometer, only, is reliable.

Another fact to be noticed is the gradual rise of the freezing point—32 degrees F.—in mercurial thermometers, with age; this rise is sometimes as much as 2 degrees F., within a week after it is filled, and in a year or two that may rise an additional 1 degree F., consequently a thermometer should be frequently tested and the scale, if possible, shifted to agree with the correction.

To sum up the above in a few words, the best exposure for a thermometer is a position with free circulation and protected from the influence of surrounding objects, which tend to interfere with a correct reading, and uninfluenced by artificial, direct, radiated and reflected heat.

Davitt's Advice to Tenants.

LONDON, Jan. 30.—Michael Davitt, speaking at Rathkeale, County Limerick, yesterday advised the tenants of Lord Gullamore not to accept the offer tendered them to purchase their farms, because of heavy burdens which would surely accrue under present circumstances, and also because Lord Gullamore had evicted two of his tenants. He considered persons taking the farms of evicted tenants cowardly, slimy renegades and social lepers, a contract with whom should be considered a stigma. The cardinal object of Irish agitation, he said, is the total uprooting of the landlords from the soil.
